The image shows a single sheet of handwriting practice paper. It consists of seven horizontal rows of lines. Each row is defined by a vertical red line on the left and a vertical red line on the right. Within each row, there is a light blue horizontal line near the top and a light green horizontal line near the bottom. In the first six rows, there are ten large, hollow circles spaced evenly along the top line of each row, intended for practicing letter formation. The seventh row is identical in structure but does not contain any circles.
